Shipping Notes.

(From Thursday's Daily.)

The Kaula sails for Kaula ports this afternoon.
The Alameda is due tomorrow morning with four days' mail.
The Lehua sailed yesterday at five o'clock for Molokai ports.
The George Curtis may get away for the coast today or tomorrow.
The arrival of the Fullerton in San Francisco was announced yesterday.
The flooring of the new Inter-Island wharf has been nearly completed.
Sorenson's wharf is to be repaired and extended by the Public Works Department.
The Nevada brought down some cargo not on the manifest. It was a litter of pigs.
The Kaula came in early yesterday morning with freight and passengers from Kaula ports

The British bark Brunel arrived yesterday from Newcastle with coal for W. G. Irwin & Co.

The Annie Johnson was moved over to the railroad wharf from the Immigration wharf yesterday.

The Lehua arrived yesterday from Molokai and Maui ports, bringing the government band from Lahaina.

The steamer J. A. Cummins from Koolau ports, and the schooner Kaula from Kohala, arrived last evening.

The new stevedore's union expects a charter by the next steamer. Then, it is said the boycott will begin at San Francisco upon cargoes loaded here by Japanese stevedores.

Captain White has begun a survey of the naval station lands in order to allot the eight acres which has been turned over to the Immigration Bureau by the Navy Department.

Another transport is expected from San Francisco the latter part of the month. Arrangements have been made by the Merchant's Association to provide whatever coal is needed.

The British ship Fleur-de-Lis sailed from Newcastle for Honolulu August 17th with coal.

The steamer Nihau sails for Punaluu by way of Lahaina today at 5 p. m.

The Mauna Loa sails for Kaula-Kau ports at noon today. She will carry a large party which is bound for the volcano.

The American ship Dirigo, Captain Cally, arrived from Newcastle yesterday afternoon with a cargo of coal consigned to Castle and Cooke. She made the trip in 54 days.

The S. S. Nevada will sail for Kaula this afternoon. She will not return to this port for mail or sugar but will go from Kaula to Hilo where she will finish loading and then sail from that port direct for San Francisco.

The bark Fullerton arrived at San Francisco from Kihel on August 19. She was in tow of the steamer Whittier, but that vessel cut loose from her off the California Coast several days ago, leaving the bark to make the remainder of the trip alone.

JULY MILK BLACK LIST

One hundred and five samples of milk were examined by Edmund C. Shorey, Food Commissioner, in the month of July. Of these ten samples were found below standard from the following sources: (A. de Costa, Nakatani (2), Yoshida (2), Jap for G. Holt (2), Tavares, S. Nohriga and one sample privately submitted.

OTHER ARTICLES ANALYZED.

One sample of brandy examined showed no adulteration. A sample each of elmed ham (canned) and olive oil yielded no cause for complaint.

Two samples of condensed milk proved to be fermented and unfit for food. Commissioner Shorey says: "With regard to condensed milk, it may be in order to note that the ordinary sweetened milk seldom if ever contains any preservative, the added cane sugar (about thirty per cent) being depended on to prevent fermentation. As a matter of fact, however, all such condensed milk will in this climate become in time unfit for use; the change being either a discoloration and drying up of the milk or ordinary fermentation with generation of gas and swelling of the tins. The length of time before this change takes place will depend on the purity of the article and the care exercised in its manufacture. Three samples of sardines were examined at request of private parties and no cause for complaint found.

SPOILED FISH.

"One sample of canned lobster was examined and found unfit for food. All that could be found of this particular lot (ten tins) was confiscated and destroyed. This lot was a brand ordinarily recognized as good but was evidently several years old.
"One sample of canned herring, at the request of a physician, was examined for the presence of ptomaines and evidence of the presence of such found. The ptomaine was obtained in insufficient quantity to identify and I cannot say whether it was poisonous or not but as the article in question had produced symptoms of ptomaine poisoning, it may be presumed that it was.
"As is generally the case, the herring gave no evidence either by taste or smell that it was not in good condition, and from the appearance of the can it was not very old, and as well was the product of a well known and reputable packer."

A TREASURE TROVE IN THE HARBOR

Since the dredger has started to work in the naval dock slips small boys, Japanese, natives and others have been reaping a harvest in coal which is brought up by the suction of the dredger. The pipe line carrying the sediment runs over to a triangular piece of water next to the Marine Railway. The coal pickers station themselves near the mouth of the pipeline and grab for the coal as it is brought out on the stream of water. As it was estimated that there were somewhere around seventy-five tons of coal in the slips the boys have run across a lucrative pursuit which is likely to keep them busy.

Many coal ships have discharged at the Naval wharves and in the course of the unloading a large quantity of coal generally falls from the hoppers and slings. Now that the place is being dredged out, the coal is being brought back to the surface. Yesterday afternoon the boys had about thirty sacks of coal stacked up on shore ready to take home.

COLBURN GETS INTO TROUBLE

J. F. Colburn, manager of the Kapoian estate, was almost sent to jail for contempt of the tax appeal court yesterday. He had appealed from an assessment of $35,000 against Punch-bowl leases of the Kapoian estate, and Attorney Wilder for the assessor asked him what the amount of the rentals he secured from the lands was. Colburn declined to answer, saying the information was private. He also charged that Wilder wanted the information for his own use. Colburn was threatened with a jail term until he did answer, but the court finally dismissed the matter by refusing to entertain the appeal.

DAVIS AND THE ALLEN ESTATE

The Star publishes an interesting story in connection with the Allen estate. George Allen's disinheritor and George Davis' attempt to get him for a client.
The story is that Davis approached Mrs. S. C. Allen asking to represent her in settling the claim of George Allen against the estate. He is said to have asked Mrs. Allen to put up money for a trip to the peninsula in order to settle the matter with George. Mrs. Allen is reported to have refused the offer.

IAUKEA COULDN'T WORK HIS BLUFF

The Republicans in the Waihalu district elected a president and secretary to succeed Curtis Iaukea and Naukana both of whom are Home Rulers, at a meeting held Wednesday evening. Archie Mahaulu is the new president and W. S. Wond the secretary.

Iaukea tried to break up the Republican party by refusing to allow the precinct club to meet. He sent the following notice to the club, which the members wouldn't recognize:

Waihalu, Oahu, August 18, 1903.
Mr. Oscar Cox, Waihalu.

Dear Sir:—Until my resignation as president of the Republican Club of the precinct has been made and duly accepted by the members at a meeting of the club, I cannot recognize your authority as vice president to call any meeting of the club for its executive committee. All meetings will have to be called through the president if he is in the precinct.

Yours respectfully,
C. P. IAUKEA.
